

Get Creative!

Creative workshops/interactive displays/animated talks and end of year fun!

2012 is the National Year of Reading
Why not book something special to finish with one of our lively creatives:

- see puppetry & diary keeping with Asphyxia
 - make a concertina book with Sue deGennaro
 - bring stories to life (literally!) with Sofie Laguna
 - watch as a dragon is created by Marc McBride
 - create a Volcano poem with Emilie Zoey Baker
- ...and many more!

Gallery For A Day

Ever wondered what happens between painting and the page?

In these fantastic sessions, run by ex-teacher Mandy Cooper, students are invited to become 'art detectives'. They will explore Mandy's portable gallery (set up in your very own school) and look closely at her range of original artworks and prints, then compare them to the final illustrations seen in books.

Call us for more information about getting 'Gallery for a Day' set up in your school.

Today We Have No Plans

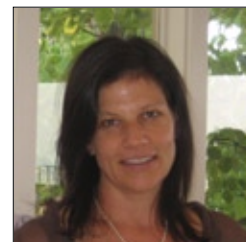

To celebrate the publication of 'Today We Have No Plans', Jane Godwin and Anna Walker are available (for a limited time only!) to come to your school and share their experiences working together on their popular and bestselling picture books.

Details: Interactive sessions available for Preps and Grade One & Twos.

Dates available: 16th, 26th or 30th October only. Please call or email Booked Out for pricing and further information.

Mali in Schools

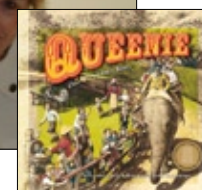

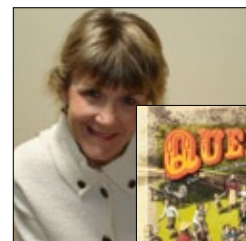

Many of you will have seen the elephant stampede taking over the city thanks to the Mali in the City program run by the Melbourne Zoo. If you're lucky, you may even have seen illustrator Mini Goss's giant knitted creation making its way out of the zoo gates!

If your school would like to book some end of term elephant related fun then call us!

Mini Goss and Corinne Fenton (author of true story 'Queenie') are both available for interactive elephant themed workshops and talks.
